General Synopsis for Episode #420A

In this episode of Pets.tv, young viewers are introduced to five experts in unique professions as they describe their work, business and area of expertise dealing with animals. Eco Animal Entrepreneur Kari Whitman has a business with everything she loves, interior design, the environment and animals. Her Greener Pups factory makes dog beds out of shredded plastic bottles, saving 70 – 120 bottles from the land fill and her Ace of Hearts, a dog rescue service, that places dogs into foster care until they can be adopted. Eric Garcetti, LA City Council President serves people and pets in his job. As an elected official he is a voice for thousand of people who want him to make the city work and pass good laws. He shares about the need to help animal shelters with the large influx of 'recession animals'. He organized a drive to raise food and money for the shelter collecting over 5000 pounds of food. Dr. Patrick Mahaney, acupuncturist veterinarian makes house calls so that animals are in their own space, comfortable and relaxed. He shares about the alternative treatments he uses to help animals reduce the reliance of medication and help with pain relief. Carolyn Gonzalez, Zoomar's Petting Zoo owner exposes young viewers to a career working with animals. She encourages them to get involved with animals by volunteering at rescue centers, a dog walking service or groomer.

Observation and Conclusion

In Episode #420A, young viewers are introduced to people who have chosen a career that aligns with their love of animals. At The Club Beverly Hills, a dog spa, viewers learn about the various pet care jobs by meeting a groomer, a doggie masseuse and a canine executive chef. Each segment of Pets.tv delivers an educational and informational message that supports current social, intellectual and emotional aspects of children ages 13 and up. Attributes and advice emphasized by guests instill a grounded balance of priorities, dedication, and perseverance children can apply to their lives.
